Welcome, Brave Explorer!

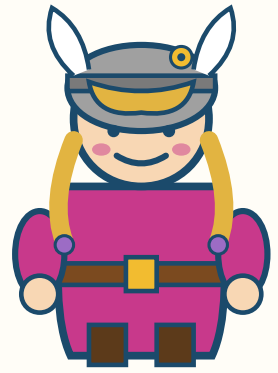

Captain Bram

Hi there! I'm Captain Bram and this is my best friend Captain Astrid.

We sail the wild northern seas in our longship, looking for new islands, hidden treasure, and friendly dragons.

Today we need YOU on our crew. Every page of this workbook is a brand-new mission. Finish them all and you'll earn the title of Epic Reader!

Captain Astrid

A note for grown-ups

This printable workbook is designed for first graders (ages 5–7) and covers handwriting, sight words, phonics, reading comprehension, and creative writing — all in a playful Viking-adventure theme. Plan on 10–15 minutes per mission. Take breaks, celebrate the wins, and keep crayons close by. There are no wrong answers in the drawing and writing prompts — only brave attempts. Happy sailing!

Bram had a tiny wooden ship. It was no bigger than his shoe.

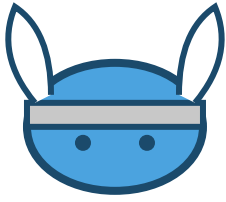

"You are too small to sail," said the other Vikings. But Bram believed in his ship.

One windy day, Bram set the little ship in the bay. Up went the red sail. The ship zipped past the big boats!

It sailed all the way to Seal Island and came back home for supper. Bram smiled. Small ships can be brave too.

Now tell us, sailor:

1. What color was the sail? _____
2. Where did the little ship sail to? _____
3. Circle the word that best describes Bram's ship: slow tiny huge

Astrid woke up. The sun was up but her helmet was gone!

She looked under the bed. She looked in the pot. She even looked in the goat pen. No helmet.

Then she heard a little snore. Her puppy, Mossy, was asleep — wearing the helmet like a hat!

Astrid laughed and gave Mossy a pat. "You make a fine Viking," she said.

Answer the questions:

1. Who took Astrid's helmet? _____
2. Name two places Astrid looked: _____
3. How did Astrid feel at the end? ☒ mad ☐ happy ☐ sad

A storm scrambled these sentences. Put the words back in order. Don't forget the capital letter and the period!
